

Ben Siegmann heads up the South Australian and Western Australian offices of Australian Unity's national estate planning and estate administration law firm. Ben works exclusively within the fields of estates, trusts and estate administration and works closely with all his clients from the simplest estate plan to the most elaborate and complex estate planning including all forms of trusts and philanthropy. Ben takes a holistic approach to all aspects of personal and business succession and estate planning by applying over 20 years of commercial legal practice experience to ensure every will and estate plan he prepares is tailored to each client and is as bespoke, considered and unique as each client. Australian Unity is also able to offer professional executor and trustee services for clients who may need a third party to be involved in their estate planning or estate administration.